Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Modern Instruments and Methods of Calculation: A Handbook of the Napier Tercentenary Exhibition The aim of the Exhibition is to do honour to one whose influence on science has been singularly profound; partly by a display of relics, partly by indicating the scope of his work, but more particularly by tracing what may be considered as the development of his great achievement. The modern mathematical laboratory may look upon Napier as its parent. An endeavour has been made to make the Exhibition and Handbook useful to the laboratory computer, the engineer, the astronomer, the statistician, and to all who are interested in calculation. The Editor desires to express his grateful thanks to many helpers: to Professor Whittaker and Dr. Knott for help both with the general scheme and also in the details; to the writers of the articles; and to the lenders of the exhibits. He also takes this opportunity of acknowledging the valuable services of his colleague Mr. Gibb, who has assisted him in the revision of the proof sheets. A special acknowledgment is fitting to Principal Sir William Turner, K. C. B., F. R. S., and to the Members of the University Court, who granted the use of rooms in the University for the Exhibition; and to Sir T. Carlaw Martin, LL. D., Director of the Royal Scottish Museum, who kindly lent the cases in which the exhibits were displayed. The closing days of the preparation were overshadowed by the death of a valued contributor, Mr. John Urquhart, M. A., Lecturer in Mathematics in the University of Edinburgh. One of the three articles which Mr. Urquhart wrote for the present work, in collaboration with Dr. Carse, was still...
