Just before the play began, the Culver cadets, who were in Washington in a body, marched into the theater and occupied a dozen rows of seats which had been reserved for them in front. Their behavior was so conspicuously considerate of the rights of others, their appearance so winsome and fine, and their courtesy so genuine, that I have ever since had a strong feeling that whatever might be true of military training for boys in some places, that given at Culver must be based upon a real understanding of the process by which boy-material is fashioned into manhood. Now I have been permitted to read the proof sheets of this book by Colonel L....
