Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Your door was open, so I was able to watch you walk back and forth in your office. A crease marred your perfect forehead and you looked like you were angry. I wanted to kiss your cheek and tell you that it was okay. You talked low, so I couldn't hear what you were saying, but I wished that I knew what brought that look on your flawless face. This was only my second day here, and even though you were clearly pissed off, I knew that I would love it here. I wasn't one to believe in clichés, but when I first saw you, it was love at first sight. Damn it! you shouted and threw your phone onto your desk. Lydia, can you come in here for a moment. I was up to my feet as soon as you called out my name. I was the first one here, other than you, so I knew that I would be able to have you to myself for a little while longer. How can I be of assistance? I asked cheerfully. I'm sorry to spring this up on you on your second day here, picking up a thick packet of documents, he handed them to me. Some idiot intern dropped this and failed to put it back in order. I looked at the stack of papers and estimated it to be around one hundred pages. The page numbers are not on them, so I need someone to go through this and put them in order. This type of work I definitely was not expecting to have to do, but I smiled and nodded my head....
