Cat and Pat Patterson say, When you have a DREAM, something that is hovering at the top of your bucket list and you re in your senior years, you d better get rollin . So, roll they did, over 265 days they pedaled 4,918 miles through 17 countries in AFRICA! The Pattersons sold their flourishing business, their cars and house, opted for early Social Security benefits, left family and friends and pedaled away from home and into an incredible journey of adventure and enlightenment. Through their stories in The African Dream, you will find lessons learned and lessons taught, myths debunked and mysteries of the Dark Continent exposed. Are there natives dressed in loin cloths carrying spears or big game animals roaming the roads? Will Muslims in Islamic Kingdoms or Republics be friendly or threatening? You ll find the answers to these and other often asked questions on the pages of their book. It is true that great swatches of jungle, arid lands and...
