This is achieved by inspiring the believer to a life of devotion and consecration. The re-awakening creates the desire to commune and relate with God in a very personal and practical way. This motivation leads to a New Birth. As one progresses as a Christian, one is faced with the realities of death and eternity, the issue of life after death. Man is made up of two composites, the material and non-material parts. The material part of man is the physical body. This is subject to death and decay. Death is the irreversible separation of the physical body from the non-material parts. The Bible reveals this continued conscious existence after death. It also stresses on personal accountability, for what the soul has done with our physical bodies on earth. In the spiritual world a selection process distinctly determines the destiny of any soul. At the end, a soul is either ministered to by satanic agents of Death and Hades or angels of God. The righteous are resurrected to stand before the judgment seat of Christ to be rewarded. The names of these righteous ones are listed in a book of life. People who fail the selection process will be judged to condemnation and doomed to perpetual damnation. Our resurrected body shall flow from the nature of the earthly body. The nature of life in eternity is perpetual and the quality is determined by the quality of the life on earth. In eternity, there is no more conditioning; no time again to make amends. The time to sow for eternity is here on earth.
