Excerpt from Speech of Mr. James McDowell, of Virginia, on the Formation of Governments for New Mexico and California: Delivered in the House of Representatives, February 23, 1849 Since the discussion of our territorial question commenced in this Hall, and the interest. And agitation of it has extended to the country at large, we have heard more than ever before of a certain mysterious but malignant and corrupting slave power, by which, it is alleged, the free action of this Government and the liberties of our people are trodden under foot. Slave power! Oh, sir, how the truth of history, in the very matter im plicated, and how the warm and. Kindly sentiment of national relationship which glows in the bosom of every American, Wherever his home, how are they alike invaded and outraged by this offensive phrase, and the more offensive ends of sectional prejudice, animosity, and deception, to which it is so often and so wrongfully applied! The free action of this Government and the liberties of our people stricken down by the slave power! Why, sir, does not every...
