Not illustrated. 1909 Excerpt: .it be brick, stone, or shingles, with absolute accuracy, as the standard of the best work, thus producing that soulless uniformity which may be the pride of the workman, but is the despair of the artist. It was some years ago, with a commission to design a number of farm buildings with unusually attractive settings, that the problem presented itself of finding a the whole roof by furring on each rafter from 4 inches to 6 inches in height in the center of the roof and diminishing the furring to nothing at the ridge and eaves. The furring strips are then laid on horizontally about 4 inches on centers. At the gables the furring is constructed with the greatest care by 1 inch by 2 inch shingle-strips running with the roof rafters, which carry the general convex lines of the roof to meet the hanging verge board. At the rounding of the gables the furring is brought well forward on the verge board and then returned against it, forming in section an arc of a circle. This rounding at the gables is greatest at the apex and diminishes towards the eaves. Often on a main roof it is desirable when a decided softening of the gable is wanted, material for the roofs which would carry out the charm of other materials at hand. With the regulation roofing materials such as shingles, tile, and slate, the problem seemed a discouraging one until I remembered that many years...
