To the Outbreak of the Civil War 1603-1642; 1639-1641 In one quarter only have I found any difficulty in procuring access to mss. Of importance. I regret that Lord fitzwilliam has not considered it to be consistent with his duty to allow me to see the Strafford correspondence preserved at Wentworth Woodhouse. On the other hand, the extracts from two un published Strafford letters preserved at Melbourne, which will be found at the opening of chapter lxxxix., will probably be regarded, by others as well as by myself, as being full of interest and I have been glad to be able to assign without doubt (p.199) the authorship of the petition of the twelve peers to Pym and St. John, and to state (p. In opposition to my former opinion, who were the personages with whom Henrietta Maria held secret interviews in February 1641. It would not be becoming to enter into a criticism of modern writers, as the points at issue could only be made intelligible at far greater length than I have here at my disposal; but as it has been necessary in the interests of truth to speak clearly on the extreme carelessness of some of Mr. Forster s work, I should not like to be considered to be without sense of the high services rendered by him to students of this period of history, especially in quickening an intelligent interest in the events of the seventeenth century. Nor will it, I trust, be presumptuous in me to record my admiration of the thoroughness and accuracy of the work of Mr. Sandford and Professor masson. I have...
