Reviews

This published book is wonderful. It is really simplified but unexpected situations within the fifty percent of the ebook. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

Hazyland Publishing, United States, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Resort-town tabloid reporter Alex Perkins, 33 and most happy hanging out on Northport's working waterfront, reluctantly covers local arts happenings. When he encounters an oddly attractive, bird's nest-haired, young woman, putting up posters for a performance piece depicting her bikinied-self striding down a beach, his editor, Steve Towle, assigns Alex to it - presuming he will return with a few decent skin shots for the next week's cover. Fond of quoting Joseph Goebbels Every time I hear the word culture I reach for my revolver, Steve's primary concerns aren't artistic. Alex, arriving late, finds Lucinda - naked but for a painted-on black bikini and the words, This Is Not My Bathing Suit lettered on her torso - beset by outraged middle-American beach-goers. Arrest follows when the perpetrator refuses to settle for just a warning. To her, this is a matter of principle (and a good career move). Arthur Dalmore, director of the Northport Museum of Modern Art, newly wooed from New York's Whitney, bails Lucinda out - peevishly explaining that This Is Not My Bathing Suit is an ironic response to surrealist painter Rene Magritte's infamous canvas entitled, This Is Not A Pipe. Alex has gleaned from arts magazines that in Dalmore's previous habitat, the New York postmodern art scene of the 70's and 80's, almost anything might be art: artists locked in boxes, vagina paintings, or even a present day Van Gogh wannabe having an assistant shoot him. When Alex interviews Lucinda (over beachfront Margaritas) it devolves into a midnight stagger to Alex's bed at his Gram's nearby cottage (where he's resided since his divorce six months...
