Excerpt from The St. Ignatius Collegian, Vol. 9: Chicago, Ill., Nov; 1909 New University Born in Chicago! St. Ignatius College expanded into great university under name Loyola. Jesuit leaders plan best of engineering, medical and other departments. Thus ran a headline and subheadings in the Chicago Daily Tribune, Monday, October 18, 1909, announcing to the people of Chicago an event momentous in local education - the founding of a Catholic and Jesuit University! Those terse, brief statements marked the climax of forty years collegiate prominence in this city, and the consummation of the eagerly awaited Chicago Catholic University plan. The story of that university plan has been sketched in the pages of the Collegian for three years, by editorial, feature article, and half-tone. In the 1906 April issue, the purchase of seventeen acres of Rogers Park real estate during the preceding month by the then president. Rev. Henry J. Dumbach, S. J., was announced in a glowing editorial, prophetic of the future that has now become a reality. In the April issue of 1907, the frontispiece was a half-tone of St. Ignatius Church, Devon and Evanston avenues, the first building to be erected on the north shore property. In 1908, the July frontispiece was a photograph of the Hon. Wm. Dillon, Dean of Lincoln College of Law. The first leader that month was an article by Mr. Arnold McMahon on Lincoln College of Law, the first department of the greater St. Ignatius. In that same July issue, College Notes was illustrated by two cuts, one representing the Academy (then) to be begun the following fall, and...
