Excerpt: . . . my father wrote to him, offering to send students from Hoxton to supply the pulpit. Six months afterward, this offer was accepted. Appearances were at first discouraging, but soon attention was awakened--the chapel was filled, and a Sunday-school was commenced. In 1815 one of the students was ordained and settled as pastor of a church in this place. In 1813, a person who preached near Rickmansworth, in Hertfordshire, took a lease for a term of years of two cottages in that agricultural town, which he fitted up as a chapel, but died before the bills were paid. By the exertions of a few religious friends in the neighbourhood, a portion of the money due was collected, and the remainder was raised by two Hoxton students. My father afterward agreed to take the lease, and consequently became answerable for the rent, (20, ) which he continued...
