Transnational Muscle Cars

By Jeff Derksen

Talonbooks. Paperback. Condition: New. 128 pages. Dimensions: 7.8in. x 4.8in. x 0.4in. Transnational Muscle Cars provides a withering critique of how it is that consumption, buying (into) something, buying anything, has become the prime mover in a transient global urbanism that now defines our everyday lives. Written over the past ten years in a quartet of cities Calgary, Toronto, New York and Vienna Transnational Muscle Cars is the second book in Jeff Derksens trilogy addressing place, culture and capital, and draws on a wide array of North American post-war poeticthe declarative aspects of New American Poetry, the pop cultural details of the New York School, the reflexive politics of the Language Poets, the personal politics of the Kootenay School of Writing and on contemporary cultural and political theory, critical geography, urban theory, and architectural concepts. Whereas the first book in this trilogy, Dwell, tried to work out a poetics of place still tied to questions of national culture, Transnational Muscle Cars rescales these questions. Moving from the national to the global-urban, it draws on a wide range of cultural references, from Keanu Reeves to the Russian Constructivists, from the Gap to inflatable architecture. While the politics of poetic form is still a key aspect...
