OCLC Number: (OCoLC)64583984 Subject: Disability insurance claims -- United States -- Data processing. Excerpt: . . . it expected to finish implementing the electronic disability system in the one remaining DDS - New York - in October 2005. SSA officials attributed the 4-month delay in the planned implementation at the New York DDS to the need for additional time to interface the electronic disability system with that states existing claims processing capabilities. New York and Nebraska are the only two DDSs in which the states claims processing capabilities are not supported by the common hardware platform that the majority of DDSs use and that have developed and rely on disability claims processing software that is unique to their processing environments. As a result of New Yorks efforts to develop and test an electronic disability claims process, it had achieved a level of electronic processing, including the capability to scan medical evidence into its system, prior to SSAs completion of the electronic disability system. SSA and New York DDS officials agreed to interface the new electronic disability system with portions of that states existing claims 13 processing...
