CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 218 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.5in. Brothers pull in different spiritual directions, unable to let one another go. In a Saxony pub, two old men fight a war that ended decades before. The Attempted Destruction of Herr Neumann, Ezra Olmans debut short story collection, explores the seam at which holy and secular converge, and along the way examines what is broken and whole in contemporary Jewish life. The scope ranges from an antediluvian quincentenarians search for companionship (Ard) to a struggling biblical theme park (Bibleworld), from a young ultra-Orthodox woman furtively tearing through the streets of Jerusalem (Running Bayla) to the new guy who joins the baseball-crazed old-timers at the local Dunkin Donuts (Home Run Herschel). In Endgame, a lonely widow tries to help the Jewish State in unconventional ways, and in Memoirs of a Boy Leader, a precocious child uses imagination to transport himself beyond life in a seedy beach town. Other topics include the fraught relationship of expatriate Israelis to their native land (Bingo, Roundtrip) and a Runyonesque paean to Baltimore (Shabbos Preakness). This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
