Excerpt: .handed or seen, hence one natural color then, no more than now, could not have originated from another, but each was then as now, independent of each other, and this must have been the case of all things, whether inanimate or animate. Wherefore we obtain the undeniable proof with reference to the colors of the Mongolian, Indian, Malay, African, and Caucasian, having been originally as they now are in the scale of creation, or we should detect changeableness in the organic coloring property in matter. For who will pretend to say that grass, or leaves, or blossoms of inanimate matter, or animate, below bipeds, had or have changed their coloring since the creation? In this respect, the organic law is fixed, and has been so far back as the memory of man extends, to the very remotest age of time; and hence if fixed in one thing, whether inanimate or animate, it must be in all, for the organic law is regular, and without the possibility of deviation. From this evidence in organic law governing the properties in bodies, we must conclude that God had a special design in the creation of existences of colors and man, as they now present themselves to our understandings, as much as he had in creating the different classes of forest trees, or other matter, whether inanimate or animate, We see their difference, and we have no evidence that such came by chance; reason and common sense teach us such,...
