The correlations were determined by the Pearson productmoments method. In order to show the relative distribution of 1 individuals for each factor correlated, each group is subdivided into five grades. This is not a quintile subdivision as there is no attempt to have an equal number of persons in each subdivision. The distribution by grades serves the purpose of comparison quite as well as the quintile or quartile method and avoids the necessity of ranking, which is practically impossible on a scale of 10 units. The method of subdivision is very simple. The scale of 10 units is divided into five equal parts. 1 and 2 = E. 3 and 4 = D. 5 and 6 = C. 7 and 8 = B. 9 and 10 = A. An example will make clear the method. An observer gets 3 in pitch discrimination and 7 in general intelligence. He belongs to Grade D in the first factor and in Grade B in the second factor. The number who are in the same grade in each factor indicates the degree of correlation. The number who are in different grades in the two factors indicates lack of correlation or low correlation. The results show a relatively high coefficient of correlation between pitch discrimination and general intelligence, singing ability and...
