Shortly after his re-election he suddenly died. !Nor is the suspicion wanting that he was poisoned. The country has, however, continued to enjoy peace, and enlargement has come to her in many directions. The present chief magistrate, Porfirio Diaz, an active leader in the FrancoMexican war, has displayed many of the qualities of a true and wise statesman. A compulsory system of education has been adopted, and many colleges are sending forth educated young men to bless their country with an increase of knowledge. Should the fickle disposition of the populace permit such a result, the future of Mexico will be resplendent with national glory. Among much instructive information Senor Romero, Mexican Minister to the United States, in his article The Annexation of Mexico, informs us that there are in Mexico at least three millions of able-bodied Mexican laborers whose wages range now from twelve and a half to fifty cents a day. Public opinion, says he, is divided in Mexico about the best policy to be pursued toward the United States. The conservative or Church party, as well as a large portion of the people, inspired by the recollection of the disastrous war of 1846-7, which General Grant characterized as unjust, and ignoring or overlooking the political changes which have since occurred in this country, are always afraid of annexation, and advocate the policy of isolation from and complete non-intercourse with the United States; while the liberal party, having the bond of similarity...
