Excerpt from The Oberlin Alumni Magazine, Vol. 6: January, 1910 Is there then a place for Oberlin Academy, a school with an honorable history and traditions of more than three quarters of a century? It is the profound conviction of those who have given themselves to its service that there is a permanent place for it in the scheme of education contemplated by the founders of Oberlin. We believe that Oberlin Academy students the world over will say that there is a place for it. We believe that they will subscribe heartily to the following estimate of the worth of such a school by the late President Harper of Chicago University: Educational Review, October, 1902, p. 254. The strongest supporter of the high schools believes as cordially as ever in the necessity of the academy. The high school can not in the nature of the case be a boarding-school. The need of boarding - schools for boys and boarding - schools for girls is everywhere acknowledged, but such schools can not be made strong and effective so long as they are dependent on present funds for their support. In the great flood of benevolence which now flows towards colleges and universities, men and women are forgetting the necessity of strongly endowed academies. I can not here enter upon an argument in behalf of the academy, but it is safe to say that, just as there is a place for the state university and for the university established by private munificence, so there is a place for the academy as well as for the high school supported by the city.
