

Beyond Nationalism Frames: Relocating Postmodernism, Hindutva, History

By Sumit Sarkar

Permanent Black, New Delhi, India, 2010. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Fourth Impression. The political context in which the historian of India finds himself today, says Sumit Sarkar, is dominated by the advance of the Hindu Right and globalised forms of capitalism. Simultaneously, the historians intellectual context is now dominated by the marginalisation of all varieties of Marxism and an academic shift to cultural studies and postmodern critiques. In this scenario, how may a thinking historian who retains an unfashionable commitment to socialist-feminist values, alongside a democratic political vision formulated within Indian conditions of skewed social development, practice the craft of history? This excellent set of essays collectively constitutes Sumit Sarkars answer to this central question. The Hindu Bomb, the history of relations between communities, the issue of religious propagation and conversion, ideas of nation and woman in Tagores fiction, and the relationship of left-wing historiography to postmodern ideas are some of the themes critically analysed in this major collection. Printed Pages: 290. Size: 14 x 22 Cm.
