Excerpt from Phylogeny of Pleurodema (Anura: Leptodactylidae): A Biogeographic Model The data for the present paper have been derived from our studies on the morphology of adults and tadpoles, mating calls, breeding behavior, and karyotypes, and from the extensive literature on the genus. These data form the basis for a phylogenetic construct that, in combination with information on past and present climatic and vegetation patterns in southern South America, provide the basis for the biogeographic model.
